

ANALYSIS OF EST's: THE STATE OF THE ART

Artemis G. Hatzigeorgiou

Department of Genetics, University of Pennsylvania, USA

agh@pcbi.upenn.edu

The main problems associated with the large-scale analysis of non-annotated, low quality Expressed Sequence Tag's (EST's) are the detection of coding regions and the correction of frameshift errors that they often contain. Several programs have been developed for the analysis of EST's. In this seminar the different algorithms, their strengths and weaknesses will be described.